THE Hongkong markets,—as we all know, are commercial worlds in miniature. Not only does buying and selling go on there, but the complicated operations of financial speculators are carried out on a small scale, and evils of all sorts ensue from their interference with the currency. The effects which the giants of finance may cause to produce by combinations which embrace half the capitals of Europe is their scope, are brought about in the Hongkong markets by the small ROTHSCHILDS and BARINGS who deal in bronze mills and copper cash. Of course when a Chinese servant goes to market for his European master, he takes with him dollars which it is necessary for him to change into small coin before he can make any purchases. The butchers and grocers and various purveyors of the Hongkong market do not give change like the shopkeepers of Europe, whatever they charge must be paid by the purchaser in money which exactly amounts to the sum demanded. As it is not convenient to go about with two or three thousand small bronze coins in their pockets, the Chinese buyers have to rely upon the money changers of the markets for supplies of the local currency. These money changers deal in the copper cash or mills as the other stall-keepers deal in other commodities, and of course make a profit on the exchange. So far, the arrangement looks fair enough. The money changers" it will be said, "do certain useful work, for which of course they must be paid. They save people the trouble of carrying about great loads of small coin, and no doubt the charge they make,—being subjected like other traders to the natural laws of competition,—is very moderate." Unfortunately, however, the Chinese cash merchants are not sufficiently advanced in economic science to allow the operations of supply and demand, free play. They are perpetually striving to make an extraordinary profit out of the community by combinations among themselves for the purpose of influencing the rates of exchange, and embarrassing the proceedings of the legitimate trader. The government supplies of small change are so restricted that they have great facilities for tampering with the currency, and the actual state of the facts is sufficiently notorious. To pass enactments which should check the proceedings of the money changers might not be easy, by any means, and in this way people are led to regard the class as a necessary evil, a decree of Providence to be borne like mosquitos or the weather. It very seldom happens, however, that mankind is left without a remedy for grievances of such an artificial kind as this of which we have been speaking. In the present case the annoyances inflicted by the money changers might be altogether obviated, and there is a way of obviating them which would bring about collateral advantages even more important than an equalization of the price of cash.

The derangement of the exchange at the markets is really an operation which ought not to be left entirely to private speculators. The interference of the government is, as a rule, objectionable when it can be avoided, but in a case of this kind where the interests of a large number of persons have to be cared for, and the internal trade of a place protected from the injurious effects of continual currency speculations, the intervention of authority becomes not only permissible,—is a duty. At present the small coins are issued so far as the government is concerned, exclusively at the treasury. If an officer—a native shroff,—were established in a little den of his own at each of the markets to change dollars into mils, or mils into dollars, at the fair rate of the day, he would be doing a public service which would many times repay the public expense of his maintenance. The profits of the money changers are an unnecessary tax upon the buying and selling community. If a public shroff performed this duty the relief which would be felt by all the servants of European houses would be immense and the actual saving to their masters by no means inconsiderable. But this is not all. At present when the Mint is about to be opened, any event which would bring about an active demand for the new dollars at the outset of their career, while they have to contend against a good deal of opposition and when it is very desirable that the Chinese should see them popular and sought after, would be an advantage. Very well—nothing could stimulate the demand for the new dollar more than the arrangement we propose. Let the government shroff at the markets refuse to change any but the new dollar, but let them give a fair and uniform rate for it. What would the consequence? All servants of European houses would want British dollars to take with them to the market, all Europeans would want new dollars at the banks to give their servants, and thus the banks would be forced to become good customers of the Mint in order to supply the wants of their own business.

The arrangement we propose would further have this advantage that it need not be compulsory. The existing money changers need not be turned out or harshly used. In changing the old dollars, they would for a time find work enough, but they would be absolutely prevented from dealing improperly with the small currency and many desirable ends would be simultaneously secured.

THE Bombay and Bengal Steam-ship company has it seems entered into an arrangement with the Austrian Lloyd's, by means of which a new passenger route is made available. This company is connected with Liverpool, its object being to take advantage of the development of the Indian cotton trade. For passengers therefore this line has not been convenient as the voyage to Liverpool was a day or two longer than to Southampton. The economy of the route, as the charge by the company's steamers was less than that on board P. & O. boats, tempted some travellers who did not greatly care about time, but it could not be expected that it would be largely used, while the service was conducted in a roundabout way. Now, however, we read that in consequence of the new arrangement the Austrian Lloyd's steamers are to run regularly to Trieste in connexion with the steamers of the Bombay and Bengal line. The Bombay Gazette says:—

"The fare to Trieste including the transit through Egypt is Rs. 645, being Rs 200 less than is charged by the P. & O. Company to Marseilles. This, however, does not include wines, for which we should consider Rs 50 an ample allowance. Two great advantages of this route is that, the distance from Alexandria is 200 miles less to Trieste than to Marseilles. From Trieste to England the traveller has a great choice of picturesque routes occupying from 3 days 6 hours to 5 days, at an expense ranging from Rs 70 to Rs 130, but for the convenience of the public, we note the Company will prepare a hand-book giving all the details travellers would be likely to require. The present through rate is Rs 95 per ton; or Rs 5 less than to Liverpool, and as Trieste is one of the principal cotton markets on the Continent, it is tolerably certain that Indian merchants will largely avail themselves of the new line to carry on a more extended Cotton trade with the Continent of Europe. The steamers will continue running to Liverpool as at present.

Summary Jurisdiction Court.

Hongkong, 13th March, 1866.

BEFORE THE HON. J. O. WAYTE, Esq.

T. S. TALBOT v J. B. WATSON.—$86.75 For medicine supplied.

Joseph Emmunuel appeared and stated that he was Mr. Talbot's managing clerk and was instructed by him to appear on his behalf.

The judge said that the Ordinance required the personal attendance of both parties, in a suit where the sum was under $100. He could not allow any person to appear for the plaintiff.

The plaintiff having appeared said, that the claim was for medicines served from the French Dispensary, of which Ronald & Carpenter were the proprietors. Mr. Ronald was dead and he (plaintiff) was his administrator. Mr. Carpenter was a bankrupt and Mr. Masson was the official assignee of this estate.

The defendant pleaded as set off a bill for $186.37½ for wines, liquor, soda water, &c. dating from 1861 and said that he held a promissory note of Carpenter's for $700.

He had received the bill, which was now before the Court during Ronalds life time and had told him that he (defendant) would give him credit for it.

His Honour said that the rights and liabilities of Ronald had survived to Carpenter his partner; who being a bankrupt the estate was therefore in the hands of the official assignee. The question was one for the Court of Bankruptcy to decide.

The plaintiff said that a good many claims would be decided by the decision in this case.

The judge said the other Court must decide; he had not jurisdiction.

TANG ALOE v LEE MOOY and TAN TOO SHING $80 for rent. The first defendant was the tenant, and the second was the security. After hearing some contradictory evidence the Court dismissed the summons.

J. BAKER v D. ILLINGWORTH $300.

Mr. Russland for the plaintiff and Mr. Pollard for the defendant.

J. Baker sworn—I am the plaintiff I claim $75 for one month's wages.

Mr. Pollard said that on the summons the claim was for $300.

Examination continued—I am an engineer; I claim $75 from the defendant for one month's wages. I was engaged on the 10th July last at Messrs Russell & Co's workshop by the defendant as an engineer at $75 per month. I have been working all the time until the end of last month. I was sick in November and December. I was paid up to the end of February, I left at the end of February. I was discharged. I do not know what I was discharged for. I was told to leave on last Friday. I did not get a month's notice. I now claim $75 for the months notice.

Mr. Pollard said the plaintiff was not a mouint, but an artificer or coals man and was not entitled to notice. The month's notice was only for domestic servants or menial.

Examination continued. (By Mr. Pollard) the place at which I work belongs to Messrs. Russell & Co. I have been paid my wages up to last month by Mr. Bush. I was away sick two and a half months. I was sent away on the 5th February. I was not knocking about in the street a long time during my sickness. I went out for exercise by direction of Dr. Murray. He told me to keep out. When I saw defendant about starting after I had been sick, he told me there was not much work in the shop, but if I came down he would find me something to do. I started on the Monday and worked until the end of February. I did not beg to get back. I swear I did not ask defendant many times to take me back. He told me when I was sick not to be afraid as I should not lose my shop. He said I should start at a week. I have been paid one month's wages; they were due to me. Before I got my wages I was told I was not wanted any more in the shop. During the time I have been in the shop I have been working at the lathe, and at the vice, and at any job the defendant put me to. I do not know if I have been doing odd boy's work about the shop. I do not call myself an engineer.

His Honour said he must dismiss the summons the plaintiff not being entitled to a month's notice.

Mr. Pollard applied for costs.

Mr. Russland who entered the court after the case had been decided; explained that the claim of 300 was for damages for wrongful dismissal.

The Court then granted the defendant costs.

STERLING v ILLINGWORTH $500 Damages for wrongful dismissal.

Mr. Russland for the plaintiff; Mr. Pollard Q. C. for the defendant.

William Sterling sworn:—I am the plaintiff I am an iron and brass founder. I have been working for the defendant at Messrs. Russell & Co., for the last eleven months at $115 per month I have been paid my wages up to January. I am in the same employment now. Defendant came to me on the 3rd March and told me to give an account of all the coal and iron that I had been using. I said "very well." He then told me that when I had given in the account I should then get my money. When I gave in my memo he then gave me an order for my money. I took the order down to the office and presented it. I refused to receipt it as I considered what they offered me was not my money. The reason left was through defendant telling me to give in my account of coal and iron. The money that was due when I left was for the month of February and for three days in March. The defendant discharged me, and charged me at the same time with being the instigator of Mr. Wise leaving the shop. Defendant engaged me on the 12th March 1865. I went to him and asked him to give me employment. He said yes he would give me $115 per month. I said I would work for a year at that rate and if I then suited I expected I would get more.

His Honour observed that he did not think that an artisan was entitled to notice unless a special agreement was entered into.

Plaintiff examined by Mr. Pollard—we had two written agreements. I said I would work for him; that was all that was said. I was not to be paid for overtime and if I was sick my wages was not to be stopped. I did not take West away from his situation. Mr Orme asked me to send for him saying that there was a good situation. I sent to him to say that there was a good situation vacant, but I did not advise him to leave.

The Judge said that it appeared to him that the plaintiff had not been dismissed, but that he had discharged himself, or even if not so, the year for which he had agreed had expired. He should dismiss the summons with costs.

LEE ANAM v TAN LOONG HING $14 seven months wages at $2 per month. After hearing a mass of contradictory evidence, the Court granted a decree.

LEONG MOON OW YONG SUN and another $91. For services rendered in obtaining a loan of $10,000.

The plaintiff said he was now employed at the Inn House but was formerly a clerk in a solicitors office. He had been asked by the defendants to get a loan of $10,000 on a mortgage of real estate at West Point. The usual charge for such services was 1 per cent. He had obtained the money, and then the defendants refused to take it. He agreed with the defendants that whether he succeeded or not he should be paid. He had been paid $6 on account.

The defendants said that they had never told him to get any money. They never wanted $10,000. They had applied to Mr. Smale to negotiate a loan for $5000 and as they could not speak English, they had given the plaintiff $100 to interpret for them. They had paid the $5000 back to Mr. Smale. The plaintiff was at that time Chinese clerk in that office. They had subsequently obtained $11,000 through Mr. Hazelund. The plaintiff was not employed in any way in reference to that loan. Another Chinaman acted on the part of them (defendants) and Mr. Barrington on the part of Mr. Hazeland. They did not owe plaintiff anything.

YOW YUE sworn—I am a copying clerk at the Agra Bank. I get $45 per month. The plaintiff asked me if I could get him a loan of $10,000, and said I should have half of the commission. I proposed the thing to a Chinese friend of mine at Stanley, and he said he would lend $10,000 at 1 per cent per month. I received from the plaintiff $50 as one half of the commission I have actually received that sum. I swear that.

The comprador of the Royal Engineers mess at Kowloon said he had received the defendants the loan. Such loans were always procured through agents. If a man wishes to borrow $10,000. he does not go to the capitalist himself. He applies to an agent, and perhaps this agent applies to another. All this money comes from the bank; it does not come from any private capitalists.

A little Chinese girl was called to prove the payment of $6 on account; but she was very uncertain in her statements. The defendants denied ever having paid $6 on account.

The Judge said the evidence was not sufficient to enable him to grant a decree summons dismissed.

In re MASSON v JEVES the judge desired the counsel for the plaintiff to consult his clients as to the steps he intended to take, in defending (or not) the action which had been commenced in the Supreme Court by the defendant for wages due to him.

On Tuesday night last, three hundred and forty eight watches were stolen from the premises of Mr. F. Sanders. Three Chinese house coolies are in custody, and are undergoing an examination before the Police Magistrate.

Mr. Anstey and the Bombay Community.

The following reply, dated February the 10th was returned by the Bombay Government to the petition of the native community praying for the removal of Mr. Anstey from the bench of the high court. The reply was addressed to Sir Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy.

SIR,—I am directed by His Excellency the Governor in Council to acknowledge the receipt of a petition praying for the removal of Mr. Anstey from the Bench of Her Majesty's High Court for reasons as stated in the petition.

2. The petition reached the Secretariat on the 30th December; Mr. Anstey ceased to occupy a seat on the Bench on the same date, and as Sir J. Arbuthnot returned to India, which terminated Mr. Anstey's tenure of office as a Judge, was not unlooked for, his Excellency in Council can hardly suppose that the memorialists expected that the request with which their petition concludes could be literally complied with.

3. Under such circumstances the usual course would be simply to acknowledge the receipt of a petition, compliance with the prayer of which was almost obviously impossible.

4. But among the names attached to the petition are those of many gentlemen for whom His Excellency in Council entertains the highest and most sincere respect, and the request thus laid before the Government is one of such gravity and importance in itself, that His Excellency in Council feels bound to state briefly the reasons which would have prevented a compliance with the prayer of the petition even had such a course been otherwise possible.

5. The petition contains the names of 2,862 persons of whom 1,278 are apparently Parsees, 1,191 Mahomedans, and only one member each of the Jewish and Portuguese communities.

6. It appears from the published accounts of the meeting at which this petition to Government was adopted, that the meeting was convened at a private house, without any public notice of the precise object of meeting, that the petition was produced ready drawn up, and was adopted and signed, without any such ordinary form of preliminary discussion as should entitle it to be considered the result of the deliberations of the meeting.

7. I am desired to advert to these circumstances, because the Governor in Council feels assured that the Memorialists will, on reflection, see that Government could no regard an address so prepared and signed as being a safe index of the deliberate views even of those members of the community whose names were attached to it.

8. But had the petition been so prepared and presented, as to entitle it to be considered as the deliberate expression of the wishes of any large proportion of the whole educated community of Bombay, the Governor in Council would still be unable to consider the specific grounds as signed in the petition as in their nature sufficient to justify the request with which the petition concludes.

9. Those grounds are briefly the harshness and insolence of manner of the Judge, and his undue but not illegal severity in administering the law.

10. It is clearly not on these or any similar grounds that any Government could with propriety cancel the appointment of a Judge who is not asserted to be otherwise than upright, able, inflexible, learned, and laborious.

11. It can hardly be necessary to point out that such an extreme step as the removal of a Judge for almost any cause, save for one happing incompetence, for wilful violation of the law, for neglect of duty, or for corruption, would be to establish a precedent which might hereafter become most dangerous to the administration of justice.

12. The querulous and serious evils which must follow, if expressions of opinion, as in this petition on judicial qualifications connected with other than the essential points above specified, were allowed to induce Government to take a step of such importance are almost self-evident. It would obviously then open to all who believed such unfavourable opinions to be unjust to hold counter-meetings, the claims of Judges which become subjects of private canvass and public controversy, and the tenure of office as a Judge might be made to no small extent dependent on popularity, or unpopularity, in society.

13. Moreover many of the assertions in this petition are obviously matter of opinion, and could hardly admit of proof, while few of the specific facts stated would be within the personal knowledge of more than a very few of the Memorialists.

14. There is one important charge, however, regarding which His Excellency in Council cannot but express his conviction, that the statements in the petition do Mr. Anstey a grievous injustice. He is charged with a prejudice against the native race by which he operated to their disadvantages when appearing before him as their Judge.

15. Whether such a prejudice existed would generally be matter of opinion, but in Mr. Anstey's case the imputation is discredited by the evidence of a whole life-time, during which he has ever been conspicuous for his ready sympathy with all whom he believed to need his advocacy, and this sympathy has been often manifested by him with the most marked disregard for all personal and sordid considerations.

16. Up to the moment of his taking his seat on the Bench, Mr. Anstey enjoyed, His Excellency in Council believes, as large a practice as any gentleman at the Bombay Bar, and his clients were of course mostly native suitors who would hardly have selected any advocate who was known to have a prejudice against all natives.

17. This large practice Mr. Anstey resigned, at a great pecuniary loss, for no assignable motive but a public spirited desire to strengthen the High Court at a period of great unusual difficulty, and his Excellency in Council trusts that when time shall have permitted the gentlemen who signed the memorial to reflect at leisure over the subject, they will reconcure Mr. Anstey from the unworthy motives imputed to him in the petition, and do justice to that learning, ability, energy, and independence for which, whether on or off the Bench Mr. Anstey has always been conspicuous.—I have, &c.,

Piracy in the Chinese Seas.

(From Mitchell's Maritime Register.)

The French Government has taken up the question of the increase of piracy in the Chinese waters, and the Minister of Marine has, it is stated, addressed a Circular to the Chambers of Commerce at the French Ports, strongly recommending shipowner who send vessels to those seas to furnish them with arms and ammunition. More than twelve months since we wrote a similar suggestion to our shipowners, and this defensive movement has been facilitated by the shipment of men belonging to the Royal Naval Reserve, who are trained to the use of guns. It is very well that merchant ships in the China trade should be provided with the means of meeting any of those sudden attacks to which they may be exposed in the Chinese waters, but piracy there has assumed dimensions which can only be successfully dealt with by a properly organised and sufficiently numerous Naval force; and it is quite time that such a force was placed at the disposal of the Commanding Officer on the station. Since the Nothesby was attacked and nearly captured by a horde of Chinese pirates in the April of last year, in the Formosa Channel, these miscreants have greatly increased in numbers and audacity, and their depredations have combined massacre with pillage. The squadron on the China station is confessedly unequal to the task of checking such acts of suppression, this state of things. Many of the gunboats are said to be unseaworthy, and those vessels that are fit for service are not of the requisite speed and draught of water for hunting up and catching the piratical junks and lorches which now abound on the Chinese coast, taking advantage of the confusion which exists, if not to duly, openly. It is under these circumstances that we find it announced that Sir Rutherford Alcock has been dispatched to Peking, and that the French Government have taken up the subject, and have communicated their views to the French Shipowners in the China Trade. The latter cannot, any more than our ship owners, censure the measure—which, if it be effectually met at all, must be by the co-operation of the two Governments. It has been suggested, and with much apparent propriety, that a share of the coast of maintaining a sufficient force on the coast of China should be borne by the Imperial Treasury. The suppression of piracy is quite as much the concern of the Chinese themselves as of the States trading with them. Many of those pirates are, no doubt, the remains of that rebel horde which we were instrumental in subjugating to the imperialists, and who now take to the calling of sea robbers, being without occupation on land. It is stated, indeed, that many of the pirate Captains are Europeans and Americans, and that in some districts the pirates are protected by the Chinese local authorities, who may, possibly, participate in their gains. The trade with China since the treaty of Tien-tsin has been gradually and steadily on the increase, and the revenue derived from it by the Chinese Government is said to be not less than three millions sterling per annum. The Government of Pekin can, therefore, well afford to pay the few thousands which may be required to put down an organisation which, if it be not taken in hand resolutely, will shortly render the navigation of the Chinese waters a simple impossibility. We have no reason to suppose that the Government of Pekin will refuse to co-operate in the necessary work, and to contribute their quota towards the expenses it may involve. A combined fleet of French, English, and American gunboats, of the requisite speed and draught of water, and commanded by smart, energetic officers, would very soon clear the Chinese coasts, bays, and islands, of the pest which now infests them. Nothing short of an adequate force will do this. The Chinese Government are powerless to abate the nuisance; but, seeing that they have profited, and are profiting, so largely by the commercial enterprise of the foreigners trading in the waters of China, they cannot in common fairness, object to contribute towards the protection of the trade from which those profits are derived. We are at a considerable cost in maintaining military establishment at Hongkong, where the troops are not required, and where the climate is more unhealthy. The expenses of that establishment might be reduced considerably, and the money thus saved appropriated as our share of the cost of exterminating piracy. The French Government, beyond suggesting, measures of self-defence to the French shipowners engaged in the China trade do not appear to have determined on any course of action. But Europe is so deeply interested in clearing away all difficulties in the way of the expansion of that trade, that we shall be much surprised if, in our efforts to put down piracy in the Chinese waters, we have not the hearty co-operation of the French Government. The pirates of Borneo and of the adjacent islands were some years since scattered by the display of a little resolution, and the seas there have since been comparatively safe. It is time the example set by the Rajah Brooke and "Nemesis" Hall should be followed by our countrymen on the coast of China.

Spirituality Without God.

(From the Sp ctator.)

A Remarkable article in the new number of the Westminster Review on the writings of Comte, an article evidently from the hand of one of the finest of living critics, and itself full of the flavour of genius, concludes with a suggestion, not made in the mood of profound melancholy it is calculated to excite, but rather in that of pseudo-classical content, for keeping a religion while dismissing God. A suggestion the same in effect has been recently made by an emin

The Luxury of Winter.

(From the Spectator.)

Of course winter is very beautiful. All the poets, and most of the popular authors, Charles Dickens more especially, will have it so; and who are we that we should contest their judgement? They never weary of writing about Nature "in her virgin robe of white,"—a shroud would be a better simile—and the "exquisite effect" of fresh snow upon the branches, and the joys of frost, and the "cheery ring" of the frozen ground, and the jollity of sport on the ice, and the harmless but exhilarating warfare carried on with snow missiles, and the rich glow, as of old mort wine, which a day's skating spreads through your veins. It is all very nice, and schoolboys appreciate it wonderfully; but just for a change, we should like to hear the opinion of London householders on the subject, particularly of such of them as happened with ourselves to be aboard in the snowstorm of Thursday. We venture to say that a majority—say of ninety-nine to one—will agree with us in affirming that Charles Dickens is an impostor, that to a Londoner a sharp winter is a season of torment, a frost as bad as a second Income-tax. A fall of snow worse than fifty concentrated fogs. He is the creature of civilization, and snow hates civilization, and the Londoner therefore hates snow. Talk of a cheery frost; the first thing a frost does for a Londoner is to hand him over in humiliating bondage to the only hateful class of English tradesmen, the people who sell themselves shovels, and men everything by which they can hope to extort a few more unnecessary pounds. The "frost has burst the pipes, Sir," remarks his servant coolly and familiarly, and the Londoner knows that sixpence more has been piled upon his income-tax. The water is pouring through his pet ceiling, the skylight is breaking with the weight of snow, the roof is letting in drops which fall in heavy splashes with an infernal purpose in their noise, and there is nothing to do but send for the man who can mend the pipes, and repair the skylight, and adjust the tiles, and who will pretend to do all those things, who makes you some astonishing statement about some pipe you never saw, and at last sends in a bill which amounts to about £7 10s. for each man's day's work, but which you are entirely powerless to dispute. Fretted with unexpected, and, as he knows, utterly useless expense,—for no plumber ever seems to repair anything,—the Londoner tries to soak his office, descending house or club, and is assailed at his doorstep by a couple of ruffians, who assert clamorously their right to clean "his" bit of pavement, and to be paid therefore. If he is unwise he resists, thinks on that in a civilized community the authorities who tax him will see the street cleaned; but if he has any experience of rectrics, or any knowledge of their genius for neglecting duty, he authorizes the work, and pays a shilling to have his steps made as slippery as glass, under pretence of clearing them. At last he is in the streets, and finds them laden a foot deep with a mass precisely like the pulp of brown paper, a sticky congloms ate of mud, snow, sand, and deadly cold water, which penetrates in a second through the strongest boots. He can scarcely see for the smut-loaded snow drifting in his eyes, scarcely walk for the clammy slush settled on the icebound pavements, scarcely hear for the wind. Every three yards one font slips on the most treacherous footing in the world,—a stone pavement covered free with a thin coat of ice, then with a great coat of slush, and flintily, with a crisp white powder which wets his ankles through and through. Every thirty yards he becomes an involuntary partaker in the "exhilarating enjoyment" of snowballing, his share in which consists in receiving either a cricket ball in the back—your London Arab always finds his snowball, an outrage on boy morality which ought to be made capital—or a handful of loose snow deftly lodged between his coat collar and his neck. He looks round for an omnibus, but the only one in sight is full and streaming on a run, and is cold by the driver, who really is "cheery," purely from the prospect of plunder, partly because he has discounted that plunder in gin, that he is "going home," but will carry him, nevertheless, for five times his fare. Ten times was asked, and given repeatedly to our personal knowledge on Thursday, with perfect impunity. Of course the Londoner—provided he does not wear spectacles, in which case he gives in at once, glad to escape lunacy—resists for five minutes, until exhaustible, and he yields at last, and seats himself in his bannon to find the glass let down on his nose, and the three separate chinks in that vehicle raining iced water on his waistcoat and each knee. Obliged to the bone, his feet wet, his knees wet, his hair dripping, not with water, but a liquid compound of ice and soot, he is carried at three miles an hour to his destination. There he finds everything going wrong, the telegraph wires hanging across the street, the gutter intensively choked up so as to flood the office, the "boys" not to their eyes in the luxury of making mud pies with the substance they call snow, and his partner, who lives in the country, eloquent on the loveliness of the landscape he had driven through. "Every branch, Sir," says that Goth, "looked like a avalanche." All his auditor wishes, as he tries to get warm, that they had been avalanches, and had rumbled on their admirer. All daylong, if it is a fine like Thursday, it is the same—brown mud and yellow flakes outside, an incipient cold within, a total impossibility of going anywhere or seeing anybody, an absolute determination that the fire shall burn, a secret acknowledgment that till wet soot ceases to fall down the chimney the fire shall continue to disobey. The dreariness of a London office in a snowstorm is a thing absolutely unique, or if paralleled, paralleled only by that of a private parlour in a country inn when the rain is coming down with a manifest sense of duty to perform. "Cheery snow" indeed! We wish Charles Dickens, and Mr. Kingsley, and all other muscular Christians, had been made to stand in it in the Strand all Thursday afternoon, sharing in the "exhilarating game," as played from under the Adelphi Arches. We also wish the storm had occurred a month later, when the borough members will be all in town. The London Volunteers would get small mercy then, and Sir George Grey's Hill for handing the streets over to the Thwaites, would have been rushed through with the energy resulting to men with chilli ins. Five minutes' enjoyment of the "cheery" slush would have rid us of Bumbledom for ever.

The waste of Spain.

From the Spector.

It was the lot of the writer of this article some five years ago to be thrown for six weeks into the company of a Spanish gentleman, who, himself a Spaniard of Spaniards, had lived among Englishmen until he understood not only their language, but their insular terms of thought. There was little to do except eat, play whist, or chat, and the Englishman, for the moment at once dyspeptic and lazy, set himself deliberately to pump his companion upon Spain. The Spaniard, though very rich and consequently very averse to disturbances, was nevertheless a "Progressista," believed in an immense future for Spain, muttered immoral wishes about the Bourbon dynasty, execrated England and France with cordial impartiality, regarded Protestantism, Catholicism, and religious freedom with equal heartiness of contempt, detested despotism, disliked parliamentarism, hated democracy—which to him implied the division of property—and wanted—his question could make out everything but that. Six weeks of cross-question brought out everything else, placed the worthy old man's hatreds, and antipathies, and dislikes, and repugnances under the whitest light, but left his wishes just as obscure as ever. At last worried out with a failure which touched his amour propre, the Englishman exclaimed, "Your countrymen don't know what they do want, and till they do just deserve all they get." "No," said his friend, a little teased, for his cigar would not light, "no; we do know. We want a maternal Government." And that sentence we to this day believe expresses the inner heart of every liberal Spaniard. He does not want to govern himself absolutely by his own volition, does not desire religious freedom, or social equality, or free trade, or government by debate, or any one of the pieces very much Tourcie and Gallic thought strives to secure its end—the happiness of the governed. He does not object to be ruled, or, in moderation, oppressed—always provided oppression does not enter his house—but he does want, want more earnestly than the outside world has yet perceived, a Government with great purposes, a Government which, ruling all Spaniards with an authority equal to that of a mother in a Continental family, shall yet push that family up and down, win it a great position in the world, resent every insult from without, and above all care for every member, children and servants, with equal zeal. A ruler who shall really rule, with the aid, if needful, of a conseil de famille called a Cortes, but who shall rule genuinely, proudly to the external world, but with kindly dignity to the household indoors, maintaining Spanish etiquette, and finding Spaniards dinner. This and not any Western formula, is the true Spanish ideal, and the secret, as we believe, of the Spanish difficulty of the hour,

JAMES GARDINER.

4w 485 Hongkong, 13th March, 1866.

A. GARD,

PROFESSOR WHEELER, would respectfully attract the attention of the Hongkong Public to the importance of having the Hair Cut and Dressed in an Artistic manner and style Appropriate to the Individual in the cut of the Hair; there can be no blunder in operating fashion without destroying almost universally the harmony of the last ensemble. Indeed as diverse at is the contour of the human head and facial outline, just so peculiar should be the trim and arrangement of the Hair. This fact is noted upon by only those Hair-Cutters who possess an inherent judgment in matters of taste, cultivated and improved by incessant study and application. Of dilitrate class, Professor WHEELER, humbly claims to be one, and the Only One in this Colony, and he solemnly but confidently invites all who may be distrustful of his ability to give him at least a trial before pronouncing an adverse opinion. He may be found at all hours of the day in his Apartments adjoining the Private Entrance of the Oriental Hotel.
